dow sills and window lintels. He is of Mabson, the negro representative from Edgecombe, on the ground of Mabson's ineligibility because of non-residence. Mabson was not a citizen of Edgecombe for 12 months before the election as the law requires. He had been living in Wilmington and voted there within twelve months of the August election.

SOMEBODY'S TO BLAME.—Nearly every day we are informed of cases of negligence in railroad authorities, as stated in the communication below, which was handed us by a leading and influential citizen of this city. As the number of complaints increase, we propose to publish a few, merely to see if any good thereby can be accomplished:

"MESSRS. EDITORS:
Some time in October last a small barrel of fish was shipped to me from Beaufort. I sent to the freight office of the North Carolina Division, and R. & D. R. Co. for it, and the answer was that it was not there. After waiting a long while I sent again, and received the answer that it was under a pile of freight and could not be gotten out—and so to-day, Nov. 16th, I cannot get freight shipped to me from Beaufort in October. Somebody is to blame.

SUFFERER.
Col. G. G. LUKK, of Camden county, is in the city for the purpose of contesting the seat of Simon A. Jones, the Republican delegate (so-called) from that county. The contest will be made upon the grounds of illegality in one of the precincts of that county. We trust the Colonel may be successful in the contest. Camden county is bordering on Virginia, Norfolk county is bordering on Virginia, and a large number of colored men are employed, and we think a case can easily be made in this connection.

TO THE FALL TRADE.—We failed to notice yesterday morning the advertisement of Messrs. J. P. Gully & Bro., wholesale and retail dealers of all manner of dry goods, notions, hats, caps, boots and shoes. They have on hand a thorough and complete stock of goods, and invite a call from the public, feeling confident they can please.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLA-TURE.—Messrs. Ramsey & Co., 29 Fayetteville street, invite the special attention of the members to their stock of ready-made clothing and furnishing goods and hats, all of which are from the best manufacturers, and made in the best style.

ment elsewhere of a lady wanting a situation as either an instructor of children or assistant in the care of household duties.

THE J. BRINTON SMITH POI- SONING CASE.

EXAMINATION BEFORE JUDGE WATTS AT CHAMBERS.

THE EXCELLENT APPEAL BY R. H.
BATTLE, JR., IN BEHALF OF THE PRISONERS.

EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES.

The Judge Discharges the Prisoners Unconditionally.

EXCITING SCENE IN THE COURT ROOM.

Long before the appointed hour for the assembling of the Court yesterday morning for the hearing of the Smith Poisoning Case before Judge Samuel W. Watts, the Mayor's Court room was thronged with an anxious crowd eager to hear all that was said in this singularly mysterious affair that has for the past month, so excited the minds of our people. At ten o'clock, Mrs. Frances A. Mann and Mrs. Mary E. Smith, attended by Sheriff Lee, the Messrs. Battle, their counsel, Capt. Smith, brother of the deceased, Mr. R. B. Saunders, who accompanied the young ladies, Miss Annie, Lillian, and Jennette, who came in the court room and occupied seats on the left of the Judge's stand. Rev.
Dr. Mason and Rev. Dr. Smeds also took seats with the family. The seats on the right of the stand were occupied by ladies of the city.

At the Reporter's desk were, besides the reporters for the News, Sentinel and Era, Messrs. Vance, of the New York World, Maj. Mann, of the Wilmington Post, Ferguson, of the Boston Times, and Finch, of the New York Herald.

At the opening of the court, General W. R. Cox, Solicitor for the State, statuted to his honor that being absent at Halifax Court he knew nothing of the case and was only notified at 9 o'clock, that it would come up for a hearing at 10. He would therefore ask a postponement of an investigation until certain witnesses could be summoned and himself posted in regard to the circumstances connected with the case.

Judge Battle replied that under the peculiar circumstances the defendants, being ladies of high social and moral standing, in the community, and had been for several days in prison; that the application had been pending for three days, &c., he would in justice to his clients insist upon the investigation, then and there.

Judge Watts decided that he would hear the case, but would issue instanter summons for the State Solicitor, who the argument for the defense was progressing.

Gen. Cox then notified the Court that, as Council for the State, he would be compelled to withdraw, and take no part in the case.

Mr. R. H. Battle, Jr., read the full proceedings of the Coroners' investigation, together with all the evidence before it, and laying the verdict before the various juries and the jury, he proceeded with a powerful effort in behalf of the prisoners, speaking for nearly an hour. In referring to the unhappy situation of the ladies present, the past happy and contented life of all the members of the now sorrow-stricken family, nearly the whole audience were moved to tears. At the conclusion of Mr. Battle's remarks—Judge Watts called.

MISS JEANETTE SMITH ON THE STAND.

The appearance of this beautiful young lady, arrayed in deep mourning and closely veiled, created much sensation in the audience. As she stepped forward and lifted her veil to take the oath, a death like stillness pervaded the entire room, all eager to hear her own words touching this mysterious affair.

Being sworn by the Judge, she described the diagram of the house and premises, (shown her by his honor), showing the various rooms, where the deceased died, &c. She said, "Mrs. Mann and I came down in the morning together. We were there when papa came in. He asked for a Seidlitz powder. He addressed no one, but was seated on the sofa and sister was standing up, as she had met him at the door, she went out and got the powder. I did not notice that she was gone only long enough to get the medicine. Papa was seated at the table. He drank from the glass, which I afterwards saw in the dining room. I did not go into mother's room until afterwards while papa was sick. I am satisfied that sister had not been in that room that morning before she went for the medicine. We came down stairs together and sat on the sofa together. When we heard papa coming, Mrs. Mann arose to meet him at the door. Mrs.

Mann, mother and I were in the town day before from 9 in the morning to about half past 1 in the afternoon.

R. B. SAUNDERS

was next examined as a practical apothecary as to the effect of poison on the effluvia properties of Seidlitz powders. As a paragon of the late Dr.
Smith, and also a neighbor, he was examined in regard to the characters of all parties, and the private family relationship. Mr. Saunders stated that he was a frequent visitor at the house of Dr. Smith, and testified that he never had occasion to observe anything contrary to the affection that is usual with families, only that the ties seemed especially strong between Mrs. Mann and her father. Mr. Saunders was also examined in regard to the events that transpired after the death of Dr. Smith and after the Coroners' investigation.
(While Mr. Saunders was on the stand Maj. Mann, the husband of the accused lady, (who is, by the way, only about 23 years of age) appeared in the court room, and the meeting between himself and the distressed family can better be imagined than described. Maj.
Mann is engaged in business in Virmont, and has been absent from his family several months. He was informed by telegram of the arrest of his wife, and took the first train for North Carolina. But for an accident, he would have arrived the evening before. At 12 o'clock he reached the city and found his wife before a Judge of the Superior Court, being examined for the high crime of murder.)

(The thrilling scene of the young husband clasping in his embrace the wife of his bosom, under the existing circumstances, will never be forgotten by those who witnessed it. But few dry eyes were observable in the large audience, even the Judge on the bench bowed his head, and was observed to wipe away the starting tear.)

A young man by the name of F. B.
Wickham was next called upon to stand. He had been an inmate of Dr.
Smith's family since June of the present year, and testified to the usual affection that existed between husband and wife, and father and daughter. During his sojourn with the family he had always been treated as one of the household, and knew Dr. Smith to have been the kindest of men to his family, and his family the same to him.

TESTIMONY OF CAPT. FRANK SMITH, brother of the deceased, was considered of special importance. Living in a Northern State he came promptly forward to testify in behalf of the defendants. He had known Mrs. Smith even before her marriage with his brother, and knew her to be a perfect pattern of a woman, and possessed with all the christian graces, and not only himself, but his entirely family believed her incapable of being accessory to the death of his brother. The evidence of Capt. Smith, (though a stranger is well known to our citizens as an Ex United States Naval officer), was listened to with great interest. During his recital, in which he was not interrupted, the audience was again moved to tears, in compassion for the unfortunate ladies then before the Court.

Hon. K. P. Battle testified as to the pecuniary status of Dr. Smith, and as his legal advisor, his knowledge that Mrs. Smith was necessarily acquainted with the same.

Fred Saunders, son of R. B. Saunders, testified that he had been an inmate of Dr. Smith's family for six months to January last, and that he had always been uniformly kind to his family.

Rev. Dr. Smeds, President of St.
Mary's College, testified to the christian character of Mrs. Smith, and also to two of the young ladies, who had attended his school.

At the conclusion of Dr. Smeds' testimony the Messrs. Battle announced their willingness to rest the case with the testimony thus far, when Judge Watts renewed his

DECISION AS FOLLOWS:

"The prisoners, Mary E. Smith and Frances L. Mann, having been brought before me by the Sheriff of Wake county, to be tried on a writ of habeas corpus heretofore issued by me, I proceeded to hear the testimony produced on the part of the States taken by the coroner before the jury of inquest, also testimony introduced on the part of the prisoners, and after argument, on motion of the prisoners' counsel to discharge them from custody.

It is the judgment of the court that there is not the slightest evidence, either positive or presumptive, to implicate Frances L. Mann in producing or procuring the death of her father, Dr. J.
Brinton Smith. It is the further opinion of this court that there is no evidence to satisfy the court that Mary E.
Smith either prepared, administered, connived at the death of her husband, Dr. J. Brinton Smith. I am, however, of opinion that from the report of the jury of inquest, which the court regards as merely inferential, it was the duty of the coroner and officers of the law to give the matter a thorough investigation.

It is therefore the judgment of the court that the prisoners be discharged.
The decision was received by the large audience with wild and rapturous applause, and while the many friends of the sorrow-stricken family were gathering around to offer their congratulations, for the first time during the progress of the trial, they gave vent to their pent up grief in tears.

As a public journalist, we, of course, express no opinion of our own in regard to this case until it is finally decided. The decision of Judge Watts does not interfere with the sworn duties of the Grand Jury, and it is possible the case will come up again.

THE AMERICAN PLEBISCITE—THE BALLOT DEBAUCHED.

The Administration party went into the late campaign with the intention of succeeding at all hazards. It was a matter of small importance to them how that success was to be attained. They had counted the cost of defeat, and they were determined to win, regardless of consequences.

The Presidential contest was really inaugurated simultaneously with the commencement of the campaign in North Carolina.

Our State was made the initial battleground, and long before the August election there was a deeper national interest felt in the result than was ever before felt in any local election. Indeed the contest here was not regarded a local one. It was regarded as a test of the popularity of the rival candidates for President. In that light the fight in North Carolina was waged—in that light was the election of Caldwell accepted by both parties.

The Administration party having determined to carry the election in this State, set about its work in a manner hitherto unpracticed at the South.

First, the Federal officials were put in the ring. Such men as Marshall S. T. Carrow and Supervisor P. W. Perry rushed into the arena, followed by a long train of attendants, consisting of Deputy Marshals, Assistant Assessors and Revenue Collectors, and every species of Federal office holder, from his highness, the gentleman from Maine, down to the most insignificant Post Master or the humblest village, whose salary would not reach fifty dollars per annum.

The operations of these gentry—of course some were more active than others, are too well known to the public. It is needless for us to recount how they travelled from county to county, and from district to district in the interest of the Radical party, or what means they resorted to in order to serve their masters, or what appeals to the cupidity and fears of certain classes of voters they made in the shape of money and Government patronage on the one hand, or on the other the frowns and vengeance of the Federal power.

Nor need we refer to the conduct of the President's Cabinet, who under instructions from their Chief, left their posts of duty in Washington City to take part in our election, farther than to say that till the advent of Radicalism such officious intermeddling was never dreamed of before, and is a reproach to any Government.

It is to the interference of Federal officials, to the corrupt use of money, to the promise of Government patronage, to the threats of Federal punishment and persecution and to the dictation of Cabinet officers, there be superadded the importation of negro voters from Virginia, South Carolina and Washington City, together with numerous other species of direct and positive fraud, the matter is easily explained why it was that Caldwell was enabled to claim a majority of two thousand out of an aggregate poll of one hundred and ninety five thousand. But Caldwell's triumph was obtained by unfair and dishonest means—by bribery and intimidation—by open, shameless, notorious frauds—by debauching the elective franchise, and preventing a fair and free expression of the popular will.

But to stop the demoralization in the Radical ranks, it became a matter of necessity for the Administration to carry North Carolina. The flat went forth, and Radicalism prevailed.

But the victory was not altogether with the Administration. A handsome majority in the Legislature, and five out of eight Congressmen for the Democrats were trophies not to be derided or underestimated, for they gave to the contest the appearance of a drawn battle. Hence it became necessary for the Grant party to win new laurels in order to establish its hopes of success for November.

The State elections in Vermont and Maine came next, and there were to be witnessed the same unscrupulous means that were used in North Carolina for the Administration to hold its own. Supervisor Perry and Judge Peru Settle were sent from the State to canvass New England, and votes were bought and sold, according to the local papers there, for dollars and cents, like so much produce in the commercial market.

In the October elections of Pennsylvania and Indiana, we next witness on a grander scale those stupendous engines of fraud and corruption which made the ballot a farce and brought the tinge of indignant shame to the cheek of every honest man in the country. In Pennsylvania particularly, every trick and device were resorted to before the day of election to defeat the fair expression of the popular will and to place in the gubernatorial chair a dishonest and a disgraced man—the partner and associate of Penitentiary convicts and who had been proclaimed a thief by one of the leading Radical papers of his own State. But however disreputable the means used before the day of election to manufacture a fictitious majority for Hartman, the wholesale system of cheating resorted to on that day rendered the triumph of the Democratic candidate a moral impossibility. The cry of, as goes Pennsylvania so goes the Union, had wrought upon the fears of the Grant managers to such an extent, that they employed a set of unscrupulous manipulators to alter the figures after the votes were cast, so as to count in Hartman at all events, regardless of the actual majority Buckalew might have received. Newspapers that first thought the election was a fair one, now assert their belief that Buckalew actually carried Philadelphia, notwithstanding Hartman's nominal majority there was over twenty thousand!

We have published in the News a statement brought to light in an investigation before a Judge in Philadelphia, showing that in less than one tenth of the voting Districts of the city, over three thousand votes had been altered from Buckalew to Hartman, and that would make a difference of thirty thousand and it the same ratio of frauds prevailed in the remaining Districts.

But the Grant party thought it was necessary to carry Pennsylvania. The flat was issued, and the work was done. The moral effect of the Pennsylvania election, in all probability, decided the fate of the Presidential contest by paralyzing the efforts of the friends of Reform, many of whom regarded any further efforts to defeat the party of fraud, patronage and power as utterly useless.

Thus we see how the sanctity of the ballot has been overthrown, and the right to a free election has been trampled down and utterly demolished. The Presidential election can only be regarded as registering the will of the First, as the Plébiscite in France registered the will of Napoleon. The President has but to issue his edicts, and his voice is obeyed with the same subservience that the subjects of monarchy obey their imperial masters.

FIRM AS A ROCK!

Some slanderous rumors have been put in circulation by evil and designing Radical politicians to the effect that certain Democratic members of the Legislature had been bought up, and would not affiliate with their party in the organization of the two Houses of the Legislature, and especially in regard to selecting a United States Senator in the place of Hon. John Pool.

We have paid but little attention to these reports heretofore, but we deem it our duty to refer to them now on the eve of the meeting of the Legislature, in order to put our friends on their guard against the deep laid schemes of our wily and unscrupulous adversaries, who will resort to any measures to distract and divide our party.

We are confident that the Democratic members of the Legislature will stand firm as a rock by party organization.

We know that the Radicals are boasting that, with the immense amount of money in their hands, they can buy up enough Democratic members to turn the scale in their favor. We scorn to listen to such infamous language, and denounce the assertion as in keeping with the character and conduct of that shameless and unprincipled political organization whose rule has been a curse and a blight to the State!

We cannot believe that a single Democratic representative of either branch of the General Assembly will betray the confidence of his constituents, forfeit the respect of every honest man, and sell himself to immeasurable infamy and degradation by staining his soul with a Radical bribe!

But we wish the Democratic members to remember the necessity of strict party organization—to stand by Democratic usages and customs, and thus thwart the plans and devices of their political enemies.

IMMIGRATION.

One of the most important subjects that will engage the attention of the Legislature is that of Immigration.

During the last twelve months there have been numbers of foreigners to visit our State on tours of inspection, and many of them were so well pleased with our soil and climate and the kindness and hospitality they received at the hands of our people, they have made North Carolina their home.

Most of our foreign settlers are Canadians, and represent a class that will prove a most valuable acquisition to our population. They are a sober, modest, energetic, upright and intelligent people, and make good and peaceable citizens.

In Wake, Guilford, Granville and several Western Counties where these immigrants have purchased land, they express themselves as being much gratified with their condition and prospects and are using their influence to induce others of their countrymen to come to our State.

The tide of immigration having already begun to tend in this direction, we hope the Legislature to assemble to-morrow will give this matter their prompt attention.

We need foreign labor and capital, and any practical measure looking to the encouragement of immigration to North Carolina will meet with our earnest and zealous support.

A recent telegram from England reports an advance in the price of steel of 40 per cent. The finest quality of English steel is now $60 per ton higher than the same grade of American steel.

OVERGROWN HOGS—Says the Hartford Times:

There is not one single advantage to be claimed for overgrown hogs. There never was a monster hog that did not make the man who raised him pay for every pound he weighed. They do not furnish an ounce of meat, grist, or lard. When slaughtered, it takes a long time to get one cool to the marrow in the bone, and then when the hams are put in salt, it is troublesome to finish them to the centre. Four hundred live weight is as large as hogs should be in order to make good bacon. Beyond this size there is a loss somewhere. Either the feeder, butcher or consumer is cheated, and as a general thing every one who has anything to do with the hog will find it, if he observes closely, that they are not so profitable as the smooth, nice hog of 350 pounds weight. A small head, with little upright ears, and legs and hoofs delicate to perfection, are marks which indicate the greatest amount of food consumed; and it will always draw more readily the attention of every butcher.

The Columbia correspondent of the Charlotte News, writes: "A miscegenation marriage was consummated here to-day. Trial Justice Richmond did the job. The bridegroom is an Irishman from Georgia, and the bride is a negro of this city. Their wedding trip is commenced, and extends to Athens, Ga. There is no knowing where 'twill end."

Gents:—B. pleased to publish the following communication and endorsement which appeared in the Sentinel of yesterday:

[For the Sentinel.]
Messrs Editors:—Allow me through the columns of your paper to recommend Mr. James J. Lewis as a proper person to fill the position of Assistant Doorkeeper of the House during its coming session. Mr. Lewis is an honest, steady and reliable man. I have known him for many years and feel certain that no one could fill the position better. Mr. Lewis is well acquainted with most of the Senators, and would be the right man in the right place.

Mr. Lewis is an ardent Conservative, and has given both time and money to the cause. This is the first time he has asked for any position, and the Democratic party of the State should see to it that he gets it.—Sentinel.

MACON COUNTY, N. C., Nov. 9th, 1872.

Messrs. Editors:—For many years the section of the State west of the Blue Ridge has not had a presiding officer in either House of the General Assembly. Col. Baxter, before the war was, I think, the last, and in fact, the only speaker the above section ever had in either House. This Senatorial District has never had any office, however humble, in the above body.

There is a vacancy now in the Senate, which will not often occur. There is no presiding officer. The Senate will have to elect one pro tem. For this position we tender our Senator, W. L. Love. He has been in that body since 1867. He is worthy and well qualified. We have trusted him long, and found him faithful. This honor done him would be appreciated by his entire constituency, and make us feel we were not forgotten. The cast had both chairs in the last session, and has now the U. S. Senator.

Yours respectfully,
MACON COUNTY.

Reading Clerk of the House.

Messrs. Editors:—Permit me to add my endorsement of the claims of Armstrong, Esq., for the position of the Reading Clerk of the House of Representatives. Mr. Jones deserves all that has been said of him. He is diligent in business, moral, upright and a true and tried Conservative. Mr. Jones has never been a candidate for any public office, and the Legislature cannot bestow the office upon one more competent and deserving.

If high moral character, energy and fitness be any recommendation, then are Mr. Jones' claims eminently worthy of consideration at the hands of the Legislature.

A VOICE FROM THE EAST.

Five members of the household of Mrs. Rohr, residing in Winchester, Va., were taken violently sick on Sunday week last, by having taken poison in the coffee they drank that evening. Mrs. Rohr, her three daughters and a Miss Wood, an inmate of the family, were prostrated and have not yet recovered; but Mrs. Rohr's two boys, who drank none of the beverage, were not affected.

A Kentucky legislator sent up the following memorandum to the clerk: Leave it to be given to bring in A Bill to alter the time for the Legislature to meet. Referred to the committee on religion."

O'Connor gave the temperance candidate a close run.

NOVEMBER.

BY SOPHIE SPARKLE.

The sunbeams fall aslant the wall,
The ivy glows with rusty red,
The dahlias hang in faded lead—A glory and a light is over all, The bitter mingles with the sweet,
The sky is all a golden glow;
But, lying low,
The leaflets sigh and willing die Beneath my feet.

See where the Summer's gold grows sear, The gold and crimson of the year, Fading as Autumn draweth near,
Nature's great heart grows numb with fear, As Autumn bends o'er Summer's bier—The sky has still its golden glow; While soft winds sigh and bright leaves die On earth below.

Oh! sky, so bright, while all is dear!
Oh, life, whose joys are dashed with tears!
Whose glories fade as fade the years!
Like Summer leaves grow brown and sear, One joy I've gathered from the year, Oh, golden glow of a hope,
That rises far above the deep,
And arches o'er the tide's dark sweep Even as I weep!

Oh! heart, that throbs with courage high, Though fond hopes brighten but to die;
Like Autumn leaves grow brown and sear, Like Autumn leaves all scattered here, Still struggling through grief and pain—
With perfect faith, undaunted soul, That throb at last the distant goal Will safely attain.

The saddest, darkest days are near!
The flowers while yet to sleep On Nature's heart; their slumber deep She hides from Winter's stormy fear.
He still, poor heart, why shouldst thou fear If, from earth's deep and dark recess
The flowers may rise at Spring's caress; So, heart, of love and joy the tomb—
The Wonder-Flower, from out thy gloom, May rise to bloom!
